

The government clearly has enough power to spy on individuals suspected of wrongdoing as is. Polls already show public distrust of politicians as being epidemic. This is unnecessary and will only further erode public trust of those in power. The more America becomes a police state violating its citizen's privacy, the more it will divide and tear us apart; no doubt playing right into our enemies hands. This is not the way for America to remain a beacon of freedom and strength.